Revealing...

London's changing shape

Welcome to the 2015 edition of London's greatest showcase of architecture, engineering and landscape design.

London faces many challenges in the coming years, including the increasing demand for housing, the pressure on our green and open spaces, and the need for more transport infrastructure. The city is expanding into previously underused areas, increasing density in others, and creating whole new residential and business districts. To make these places sustainable and liveable means that we need high-quality design more than ever before.

Open House London is your chance to discover and explore the inspiring schemes that today's architects, engineers and landscape designers are producing to respond to these challenges.

Open House London is just one part of the work of Open-City in championing the value of well-designed places and spaces in making a liveable and vibrant city, and the role everyone plays within it. Overleaf you can find out more about what we develop and deliver as London's leading architecture education charity.

This year, as every year, we invite everyone to explore and understand the value of a well-designed built environment over 48 hours in September.

Be inspired and tell us about your Open House London this year by joining us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram.

Five things you might not know about

Open House London, London's largest festival of architecture and urban design, is just one part of the year-round work of Open-City. This charity was set up 23 years ago with a passion to open eyes and minds to the power of good design.

People of all ages and backgrounds want to influence the shape of their neighbourhoods. We provide training opportunities for communities and local decision-makers to advocate for good design throughout the city. We offer opportunities to share knowledge and skills, and platforms for debate on all issues green. We also encourage people to discover how their city is designed and built every year through Open House London and our regular architecture tours.

We have found that the best way to nurture enthusiasm and launch a journey of discovery into architecture is to work with children and young people through challenging building explorations and creative workshops.

With our professional partners, we also provide role models, practical support and hands-on experience to enable young people to develop the inspiration and confidence to enter the built environment professions.

Find out more at open-city.org.uk.

Follow us @opencityorg

We champion the value of design in making a liveable and vibrant city, and the role that everyone plays within it.

The quality of our urban environment is essential to the success of our society, culture, health and wellbeing ... but we never learn about it formally.

“How would I describe Open-City?
In one word: inspirational.”

We are at the centre of creating better places for people.

We don't just argue the case for design. We enable thousands of people of all ages to develop the skills and confidence to do this themselves.

“Open-City's bespoke training with easy tools and materials makes learning fun, and its ability to allow people to take ownership is outstanding.”

Theresa Coyle MBE, CEO of Finsbury
Park Community Hub

Advocacy and Enabling Programme

Open-City...

We inspire young people to have their say about their city.

It proves that when young people take the lead in improving the built environment, their peers will be inspired to do so too.

“Getting young people enthused in terms of long-term planning in their area is crucial to their communities.”

Stephen Kelly, Assistant Director Planning, London Borough of Haringey

We foster civic pride, ownership of and interest in local places.

Providing free and open access enables everyone to challenge existing ideas about the city, and raises expectations of what is possible.

“I take infrastructure for granted; it’s not until I stop and look during Open House London that the real quality and utility become obvious.”

Open House London visitor

We are committed to showing how London can become a greener and healthier city.

Our programme of innovative green design and associated public debates asks how we can improve London’s environment.

“Open-City’s programmes are really important industry events that help put sustainability topics firmly on the agenda of professionals and the wider community.”

Lesley Treacy,
Greengage Environmental LLP

The Shape of Future London: Join the Debate

#myfutureLDN

London is undergoing a scale and speed of change that have never been seen before in its history. Major redevelopment, regeneration and infrastructure projects are needed to provide for the expected boom in the capital's population by 2050.

Demand for public transport is forecast to increase by 50 per cent, and that for electricity supplies is set to more than double. To meet the demand for housing around 42,000 new homes a year must be provided.

Demand for water is expected to exceed supply by 10% in 2025, rising to 21% by 2040. The prospects for transport are similar, with a 50% increase in public transport capacity required by 2050 to keep the city moving.

What will our future city look and feel like? How will the future shape of London respond to and reflect these challenges, and how do we ensure that good design remains at the top of the citymaking agenda?

THE SHAPE OF YOUR FUTURE LONDON

Finding out what Londoners think about their city has always been one of Open-City's priorities.

We give a voice to your opinions and ideas by carrying out and publishing regular polls, surveys and research into the major issues that affect London's built environment, such as sustainability, housing design and the use of public space.

This year we want to hear what you think is important for the future shape of London, and also your views on the buildings and spaces in your local area. In the run-up to London's mayoral elections in 2016, we will use your answers to our online survey at open-city.org.uk/futurelondon to question candidates on how they will help to make a better London for everyone.

Here's a snapshot of your views so far:

HOUSING

What is the most important factor to you for the design of new housing in your local area?

"That it fits in with the environment and is a practical building to use and not be just a small box that looks fancy."

"That it involves as much light and green as possible. This leads to people feeling inspired, refreshed and relaxed which is important in the busy pace of London."

HIGH STREETS

Do you think the design of your local high street can be improved?

"Wider pavements, more road crossing points, frequent cycle stands and co-ordinated street furniture are all important."

"High streets need a cohesive 'look' rather than often a random collection of mismatching shop fronts or buildings without a sense of community space."

INFRASTRUCTURE

What developments/initiatives do you see as preventing London's transport infrastructure from grinding to a halt?

"Only when new urban developments (mixed use) are totally planned around transport infrastructure and sprawl and car use are prevented will London develop properly!"

GREEN LIVING

Research indicates that people act in more environmentally friendly ways at home than in the workplace. Do you agree?

"It's all about being responsible for your actions. The office offers a non-personal environment where no one is responsible."

"The way the majority of people still have to commute and work in large buildings which are ever more energy intensive (both in construction and use) all militate against them being able to work in more sustainable ways."

Tell us what you think about the buildings and spaces in your local area. What should the priorities be for the future shape of your capital?

Support Open-City

Each year thousands of people, like yourselves, are given the opportunity to learn about their built environment through participating in Open House London. It is key to our philosophy that everyone can access and learn about London's inspiring architecture, free of charge. Our initiatives are only made possible through the generosity of donors and supporters.

Through a portfolio of education and skills initiatives we enable everyone to understand how their city is created and used. We aim to create a legacy for learning providing new skills, confidence and knowledge that can be applied in daily life, helping young people especially to reach their full potential. Our vision is that every young person in London has the opportunity to learn through architecture.

“Children enjoyed the practical approach to maths and design, and the great experience of working with design professionals.”

Sarah Smith, Henry Maynard Primary School 2015

Our annual Architecture in Schools – broadens core knowledge: over 1000 primary and secondary pupils take part each year

Youth Engagement initiatives – develop life skills: over 3000 young people have been trained to contribute to decision making about London's public spaces

Archikids – opens up horizons: annual festival for children, giving 4000 young children and their families a unique opportunity to enjoy and explore the City of London through workshops and fun filled activities

Accelerate mentoring initiative – widens access: for 45 young people each year from economically and culturally disadvantaged backgrounds to higher education

Engaging Places – providing new sources of inspiration: the leading UK online hub to support, develop and enhance built environment education

“The space was amazing and the view was incredible! We learnt about how triangles help structure.”

Asia and Mia, aged 12 – Archikids Festival 2014

There are lots of ways to support Open-City to keep on enabling, educating and engaging.

Revealing...

Open House London 2015

Revealing: spaces to live in

“How are architects rising to the challenge of designing more and better housing in London?”

We all have ideas about what makes a good home in terms of its design.

Demand for housing has always been one of the capital's most pressing issues. With London's current population of 8 million projected to age and expand in the next 20 years, we need design solutions for homes that meet the long-term needs of their occupants.

Open House London shows first hand how architects are turning the constraints of limited space, reuse of existing structures and restricted budgets to create outstanding and sustainable homes. More than ever before the creativity of the architect is key to finding the best solutions to suit our individual and collective needs. Take a look at the following designs for living:

Contemporary insertions:

- St Mary of Eton Church Mixed Use Development – new housing surrounding a refurbished Grade II* listed church with new community facilities (p37)
- Darbishire Place – a new block of 13 homes which completes an ensemble of six housing blocks surrounding an internal courtyard. The facade complements the existing Victorian buildings (p64)

Shared spaces for living:

- 17–21 Wenlock Road – housing with four courtyards giving direct visual connections to the city whilst also fostering an intimate community experience (p35)
- The Arcade – a development of affordable rental and shared ownership homes surrounding a communal garden, built in vertical modules to encourage ownership and interaction (p67)

Using 'leftover' spaces:

- Spiral House – a single-storey house conceived as one wall, which wraps the boundary and spirals into the centre of the site (p69)
- Tin House – making efficient use of an irregular site, this house is made up of interconnecting pavilions around a quiet private courtyard (p38)
- Courtyard House – a timber-frame house designed around four courtyards. A black clad exterior gives way to a light open-plan interior with flexible living space (p55)

Refurbishing our existing homes:

- Nightingale Lane – dramatic refurbishment of a typical 1930s semi. A carefully selected palette of materials is used throughout (p68)
- Trevelyan House – a contemporary re-design of a maisonette located in a classic 1950s Grade II listed Brutalist building designed by Denys Lasdun (p66)
- Raw House – refurbishment and extension of an existing Victorian terrace to create a light-filled home of industrial elegance (p62)

New housing models & structures:

- Hackney's Timber Buildings – a cluster of three of the most significant timber buildings in the world just a short walk apart, including Stadthaus, at 9 storeys the world's tallest timber apartment block (p37)
- Courtyard Housing – a housing typology developed to suit the needs of the over 55s community, derived from distilling the key elements of traditional almshouses (p19)

Revealing: how the city works

“What are the infrastructure solutions to cope with London’s growth?”

High-quality, robust and forward-thinking engineering is fundamental to the growth and functioning of London, as it touches almost every aspect of our lives: water, waste, energy, transport and infrastructure.

The Institution of Civil Engineers (ICE) and its members work to shape the world we live in. Its partnership with Open House London helps to highlight just how important civil engineering is to London and its future.

Look for the orange dot ● for engineering exemplars and the ICE logo  in the listings for some of ICE London’s award-winning projects. Here are just a few of the places to experience and learn about civil engineering. See also openhouselondon.org.uk/engineering

Upgrading our transport system:

- Crossrail – Pudding Mill Lane – Crossrail reaches the surface at Pudding Mill Lane, so a new station was needed. The station has been designed to accommodate future increases in passenger demand as well as to incorporate escalators at a later date (p55)
- St Pancras International – renowned for its Victorian architecture, St Pancras Station was opened in 1868 and is a Grade I listed building. A new terminal was constructed for Eurostar services to continental Europe (p25)

Training:

- University of Greenwich, Stockwell Street – the new library and academic building is located along an approach from Greenwich Town to Greenwich Park within Maritime Greenwich, the UNESCO World Heritage Site (p34)
- City Heights E-ACT Academy – this exciting new secondary school will provide 900 places for pupils aged 11–16 and a further 200 places for young people aged 16–18 (p49)

Mitigating flood risk:

- Thames Barrier & Information Centre – in operation since 1982, this is one of the world’s largest moveable flood barriers (p34)

Ground-breaking structural achievements:

- The Coca-Cola London Eye – the world’s tallest cantilevered observation wheel, now a much-loved symbol of modern Britain (p50)
- Emirates Air Line – the first urban cable car in the UK. It crosses the river between North Greenwich and Silvertown (p33)

Special ICE events and tours:

One Great George Street – Institution of Civil Engineers

Grade II* listed HQ of the world’s premier engineering institution, the first of its kind, and a fine example of Edwardian architecture (p74)

Boat Tours – London’s Engineering Heritage

Live commentary from London’s leading engineers on aspects including Bazalgette’s legacy, flood risk management, current and future engineering landmarks and London’s historical structures (p51)

Engineering Highlights Cycle Tour of the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park

Join leading engineer Andrew Weir, Director, Expedition Engineering, and architect Kay Hughes, Director, Khaa, to explore the Olympic Park’s enabling works and the construction of the venues, through to the utilities and their supporting infrastructure (p55)

Revealing: a greener city

“What does a sustainable city look like?”

SKANSKA

London is the greenest city of its size in the world. It leads the way with innovative environmental design solutions, green infrastructure and energy performance. Yet the city continues to face environmental challenges such as air quality, overheating and flooding.

Our Green Exemplar strand highlights projects that are making significant steps in creating sustainable places for us to work and live in. Take a look this year at how designers are making a cleaner and greener place for Londoners.

Look for the Green Exemplar dot ● in the programme listings for green projects. See also openhouselondon.org.uk/green for more sustainable related events. Here are just a few examples:

Healthy living and working:

- Ewart House – winner of the Mayor of London / RTPI award for ‘Best New Place to Live in London’ (p41)
- Hermitage Community Moorings – a model for river dwelling with floating community centre (p64)

Home retrofit:

- 24 St John’s Church Road – gracefully refurbished Victorian terrace introducing the UK’s first heated clay ceiling system (p35)
- 54 Cambria Road – Self-build conversion of a C19 terrace using reclaimed materials, natural insulation and biofuel heating (p49)

Practice what you teach:

- London School of Economics: Saw Swee Hock Student Centre – shortlisted for the Stirling Prize 2014 (p72)
- Ravensbourne – an inspirational new learning and teaching environment with BREEAM Excellent status (p33)

New build:

- Sulgrave Gardens Passivhaus – the capital’s largest mixed tenure development built using a Passivhaus approach (p38)
- The Pavilion – an uncompromisingly modern house in the Blackheath Conservation Area built to Code Level 5 (p53)
- 5 Pancras Square – LB Camden leads the way with one of the greenest buildings in London (p22)

Open Debate 2015

‘Polluting the City’

Our annual live debate for Londoners is now in its third year.

As a citizen, is making London a more sustainable place to live important to you? What aspects do you think should take priority? Open-City want to know your thoughts on the pressing issues. See openhouselondon.org.uk/opendebate for further details and how to apply for a place at this year’s debate.

Revealing: places and spaces of the city

“How can we make a London landscape that endures?”

Landscape Institute
Inspiring great places

As citizens we are moving away from thinking about our public spaces and green areas as unconnected patches of squares and gardens.

These days, with land use under increasing pressure, green infrastructure – the network of green spaces that nourishes a city – is as significant for the future of a functional London as major infrastructure projects such as Crossrail and HS2.

Landscape highlights for this year's Open House London programme show that successful projects work with what is already there.

Public realm schemes such as Connected Croydon (p30), Clapham Old Town and Venn Street (p51), High Street Harrow (p41) and King's Cross (p24) all make the most of local character. At King's Cross original cobbles have been re-laid and the gasholder, a landmark pulled down in 2000, has been restored and put to a new use as a park.

Similarly, Dalston Eastern Curve (p37), a garden created on an abandoned piece of railway land, and the Peckham Coal Line (p62), a linear garden proposed for disused coal sidings, show how by working with the infrastructure of our industrial past we can create successful green and social landscapes for today.

Take a look at some of the projects with landscape at their heart in our long-term partnership with the Landscape Institute. Look for the yellow dot ● in the programme listings for landscape/public realm projects.

See openhouselondon.org.uk/landscape for more on landscape-related events. For more details on landscapes in London see landscapeinstitute.org/openhouse

Interventions:

- Ladywell Fields – tour of a river restoration project within an existing park with new river channels, backwaters, pools and greatly improved habitats. An enhanced footpath network with new lighting, boardwalks and park furniture provides new links to surrounding areas connecting the local community to the parkland (p53)
- Many Ways to Sit: the Social Dynamics of Gordon Square – a tour and talk looking at the problems and potential of seating in public places, focusing on Gordon Square, Woolwich (p34)

Large-scale transformations:

- King's Cross Public Realm – a guided walk by Dominic Cole exploring the regeneration and landscape design of King's Cross Regent's Quarter, Kings Place, canal, Central St Martin's and St Pancras Old Church (p24)
- Walk in the Olympic Park: Function and Beauty in Landscape – walk the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park looking at the design approaches which have shaped this new park for London. Exploring the South Park and its post-Games landscape with new approaches to green space design, key to making cities healthy and liveable for the future (p56)

Revealing: revitalising the city

“What will a 21st-century Thamesmead look like?”

PEABODY

London's changing shape includes the regeneration of existing areas, improving neighbourhoods for established communities and creating new opportunities in the capital. One such place is Thamesmead in south-east London.

Thamesmead was originally conceived as a 'new town' and completed in 1968 to address the housing crisis after the Second World War. Spanning the same distance as Bond Street to Shoreditch, and with over 100 acres of developable land, it can make a significant contribution to tackling London's 21st-century housing crisis.

With the arrival of Crossrail at Abbey Wood in 2018 the area will be just 11 minutes away from Canary Wharf and 17 minutes from the City of London.

Peabody is one of London's oldest and largest housing associations, building homes and communities for over 150 years. It is passionate about the potential for positive change in Thamesmead's neighbourhoods.

Peabody is making major investment in the area and has supported the London Borough of Bexley and the Royal Borough of Greenwich to secure funding from the GLA to create complementary Housing Zones in the two boroughs. The plan is to deliver nearly 3,000 new homes to rent and buy as well as creating thousands of jobs.

With plenty of green open spaces, miles of waterways and river frontage, good schools, superb community and leisure facilities and improving transport links, the town has the potential to be one of London's most desirable places to live, work and visit.

Revealing: connecting communities

“What is happening in your local area?”

The challenges of development in London include the creation of new public and community buildings – the vitality of the city is very much about places and spaces where people can meet.

Permanent and temporary community led and community focused schemes can provide a new lease of life to buildings and areas. But of course there are also much loved and locally significant buildings that have a timeless appeal.

The weekend provides opportunities to see examples of the above and hear about some future development plans and proposals, including a few still in construction – revealing more about the future of London at a local level.

Community focused:

- Regeneration at Heart of Community – Camberwell Residential – reconstruction of a building derelict for more than 40 years, transformed into a modern residential property over a community restaurant/bar (p62)
- Crystal Palace Subway – subway under Crystal Palace Parade resembling a vaulted crypt. The subway once connected the former High Level Station to the Crystal Palace (p60)
- Pop Brixton – ad-hoc and quick-thinking design on a large scale, recycling and repurposing components providing a temporary platform for community events and fledgling businesses (p49)
- Impact Hub King's Cross – innovative workspace for social entrepreneurs with recycled fittings and furniture (p46)

Fitzrovia Chapel – located within the Fitzroy Place development on the site of the former Middlesex Hospital, the chapel was preserved as part of a development agreement for the wider project, and has been the subject of a £2m restoration by Fitzroy Place's developers Exemplar and Aviva. The Fitzrovia Chapel Foundation, a charitable organisation, has been created to ensure a strong future for the Grade II* listed chapel. Designed in 1891 by celebrated architect John Loughborough Pearson, the chapel was completed in 1929 by his son Frank (p71)

Bringing people together for learning, culture and entertainment:

- The Library at Willesden Green – new 4-storey building incorporating the Victorian library, creating a new cultural landmark in Brent (p21)
- New Wimbledon Theatre – a striking Edwardian theatre with main auditorium seating 1,600+ and which has recently been refurbished (p54)
- New Horizon Youth Centre – an institutional building invested with the flexibility and generosity of a welcoming settled house through an innovative design approach (p24)
- Thrive, Battersea Park – training building and garden for charity teaching gardening and life skills to local residents with disabilities (p69)

Places in development:

- V&A FuturePlan – introducing the rich and varied architecture of the V&A Museum, allowing access to some areas usually closed to the public and the latest gallery projects (p48)
- Barking Town Centre Tour – this area has seen significant new development over recent years. Now designated one of London's Housing Zones, meaning further development over the next decade. See a number of award-winning schemes and plans for the next 5 years (p19)

Revealing: explore your city

“Open House is one of my favourite weekends of the year – totally inspiring!”

With more than 700 buildings, walks, talks and tours, here are some of the ways to get ahead and make the most of your weekend:

1. FIRST, CHOOSE YOUR BUILDINGS AND PLAN YOUR WEEKEND ...

All buildings and events taking part this year are listed in the directory section of this guide from p19. For updates see openhouselondon.org.uk/search

Get the app! The invaluable tool for your weekend, the Open House London app contains the all-important map on the day, ‘store your favourites’ and ‘buildings nearby me’, as well as complete listings. August early-birds can download for only 69p until 1 September (thereafter £2.99).

2. DIG DEEPER ...

Find background information on most Open House buildings through free ‘archifacts’ sheets available at openhouselondon.org.uk/search. If you want to dig deeper here are some ideas ... and visit openhouselondon.org.uk/resources

Buy the book ... Get a copy of Victoria Thornton's book Open House London 2012 for an overview of 100 of some of the most architecturally inspiring buildings that have featured in the past 20+ years of Open House. BBC London and Open House

Robert Elms Show Monday to Fridays 12-3pm and Saturdays 10am-1pm BBC London 94.9FM

“When Open House throws open the portals of so many otherwise inaccessible London buildings, it also opens our eyes to the surprising variety of architectural wonders in our midst and our minds to infinite possibilities of the built environment. For years now we have covered this staggeringly successful cultural event with relish on my daily show on BBC London 94.9. Every year we receive an avalanche of calls and e-mails from people eager to know more about the opportunities afforded by this unique extravaganza of the edifice. They are hungry to see behind the façades, to learn the tales and the techniques that all buildings have to tell. So yet again in nearly every London borough, Londoners will learn a little more about the city we all share, and BBC London 94.9 will of course be with them.”

3. CHOOSE A HUB ...

Temple Inns of Court and Temple Church

In some places you can step from one building straight to another, and the Temple Inns of Court and Temple Church is just one of those hubs. To mark the anniversary of the sealing of the 1215 Magna Carta, Inner Temple, Middle Temple and Temple Church have a whole host of activities and tours taking place over the weekend at this unique site, including a self-guided family quiz around the grounds and a Children's Court taking place at the Royal Courts of Justice on Sunday. You might also want to grab some refreshments at their street food market or have a brief picnic before further continuing on your Open House weekend journey (pp28-9).

4. CHOOSE A NEW ROUTE ...

Join the Summer of Cycling! ... Santander Cycles has joined with Open House London giving lucky winners exclusive access to selected sites participating across London, including Lambeth Palace. You'll have the chance to see some of London's most fascinating and great landmarks from the comfort of your Santander Cycle. See santander.co.uk/cycles for further details.

The keys to the city... yours for one night only!

Come with us as we head out into the night, discovering cultural, architectural and artistic delights in London, whilst raising as much as we can to support people living with cancer and their family and friends. Working in partnership with Open House London, Maggie's Culture Crawl is part 15 mile night-walk, part cultural adventure, curated by former Director of the National Portrait Gallery, and writer, Sandy Nairne.

From the Foreign Office to The Royal Academy of Arts by way of Foster + Partners, you'll get access to all these buildings and many others. You'll encounter talented performers including the world renowned Royal Ballet and enjoy delicious food and drink along the way. So come out walking with us on Friday 18 September to help people with cancer. Places are limited – so sign up today and visit maggiescentres.org/culturecrawlondon or call 0300 123 1801.

Get active! ... Walking or cycling is the perfect way to keep fit while taking in some great architecture. With Transport for London's Legible London initiative we've created some handy London mapguides to help you plan a walking route between buildings. Download at openhouselondon.org.uk/legiblelondon

Go on a road trip with Arriva ... This year the Arriva bus tour for Open House will be taking a radically different – and greener – route through London. In collaboration with the Landscape Institute, our 1960s Routemaster Bus will take a route from Central to East London, exploring the historic relationship between landscape and inhabitation within the city itself. The tour will be led by Paul Lincoln of the Landscape Institute and Joe Kerr of the Royal College of Art/Arriva Heritage Fleet. 40 places available by ballot. See p17 for how to enter. theheritagefleet.com

5. LEARN FROM THE EXPERTS ...

Meet the architect ... Hundreds of architects and landscape architects will be giving talks and tours of buildings they've designed. This is your unique opportunity to meet them in person and quiz them about their work. Look out for listings marked 'A'. This year includes the architect of the Unicorn Theatre, Keith Williams

...and the engineer Structural engineers will also be on site explaining their role where listings have the code 'E'. Among these are The Sutton Life Centre (p63) engineered by Elliott Wood. Other Elliott Wood projects: 3floor-in2 Apartment (p47), Jerwood Space (p61), ORTUS (p61) and Elliott Wood's own offices (p54). www.elliottwood.co.uk

See openhouselondon.org.uk/special for a list of experts on site

6. GET THE KIDS INVOLVED!

Open House Junior for families ... Your kids can become architects by joining in the exciting family activities taking place throughout the weekend. Inspiring the next generation of Londoners aged 5 to 12, the programme is full of fun and free activities. Come and join us to design, draw and build London's cityscape! Highlights include:

City of a Thousand Architects

City Hall in the London Living Room (p60).

Structurally Found

Photo Treasure Hunt challenging you to track down London's engineering for a chance to win prizes. structurallyfound.org.uk

Build a View Shaper!

Part of the City of London's Sculpture in the City programme.

Scale Up the City!

Make small-scale replicas of key London buildings with Open-City and architects (p73).

Design your own city

Be inspired by RIBA's collection and spectacular views across London to design your own cityscape, and make your own London skyline hat and button badge! (p73)

City Children's Trail with three carefully chosen, kid-friendly, self-guided routes – perfect for short legged walkers! Available from the City of London Information Centre, EC4M 8BX.

For full details and more great activities, check out openhouselondon.org.uk/junior

Audio Described Tours... Blind and partially sighted people can enjoy VocalEyes audio-described tours of four of London's iconic buildings: the London School of Economics: Saw Swee Hock Centre (p72); The Temple Church (p29); 10 New Burlington Street (p70); and Drapers' Hall (p27). Tours are led by VocalEyes describers with building representatives or designers. Find out more and book at vocaleyes.co.uk or email enquiries@vocaleyes.co.uk. Collaboration between VocalEyes, the national charity providing access to the arts and Open House London, kindly supported by the Greater London Fund for the Blind and The Sir Jules Thorn Trust.

7. BID FOR YOUR OWN MINI OPEN HOUSE

This year Open House London has teamed up with Skyline Chess to produce an exclusive chess set depicting iconic buildings taking part over the weekend.

The new set includes BT Tower, marking its 50th anniversary. The chess set is based on an original Staunton chess set, designed by architect Nathan Cook in 1849, which is based on elements taken from neoclassical architecture.

The set is available in an online auction, the proceeds of which will go towards ensuring Open House London and Open House Junior will remain free next year.

See openhouselondon.org.uk/special

8. HAVE A SAY ...

The Open Debate 'Polluting the City' Our annual debate for Londoners is now in its third year. See openhouselondon.org.uk/opendebate for further details.

9. SHARE YOUR ARCHITECTURE ADVENTURE

Keep up to date and share your Open House experience on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram' @openhouselondon. Tell us which buildings you liked best. #openhouselondon

10. HELP TO KEEP OPEN HOUSE ALIVE!

Open House London was started in 1992 by a small charity (now called Open-City). Giving everyone the chance to explore London's great buildings helps us all to make more informed judgements on the places and spaces we use every day. The concept is so successful it has been taken up by communities in more than 30 cities around the world.

openhouseworldwide.org

The event is delivered by its community. Open House London is only possible with the support of hundreds of property and building owners, architects and engineers and others who give a huge amount of time and resources for free in putting on events and opening buildings. Without them, and the 6000 volunteers over the weekend, the event simply would not happen.

Open-City has to raise funding every year to deliver Open House London.

We can only continue with your support.

How to use this guide

This guide gives you details of all the buildings, walks, tours and special events taking part in Open House London over the weekend of 19 and 20 September. Use this guide to help you plan your visits and route.

- Get the most up-to-date listings on our website
openhouselondon.org.uk
- Get the iPhone or android app to store your favourites and use the map on the day
- Keep up to date and share over the weekend on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram

How does the event work?

The Open House London annual event is fully inclusive and admission is free to all, in line with the Open-City charity ethos of increasing wider understanding about the importance of good design.

How can I find the building(s) I'm interested in seeing?

Buildings and related events are listed geographically by borough to reflect the support of our local authority partners, and then alphabetically by name within each borough. The index (p75) also lists buildings by type.

You can also use our online search facility at openhouselondon.org.uk/search and our app (69p until 1 September, thereafter £2.99) to find the building(s) you want. Search by building name but also by date, type, architect and area. Use the map interface to plan your route between buildings and events.

What information is given in each listing?

In this guide and on the website each listing has:

- building name
- address including postcode
- opening days and hours
- visitor access
- pre-booking details where relevant
- amenities
- nearest transport (with bus numbers at the end)

Which days are the buildings open?

Each building decides which day(s) and times it can open. Use the following key to plan your visit:

- Open Saturday only
- Open Sunday only
- Open BOTH Saturday and Sunday

Key to the listings

Facilities on site, access information, special events, tours by architects and engineers, and highlight buildings have the following codes and icons:

| E Engineer on site | |
| G Green Features | |
| N Normally open to public | |
| P Parking | |
| Q Long queues envisaged | |
| R Refreshments | |
| T Toilets | |

How do I get entry to a building?

Buildings taking part in Open House London are generally on a first come basis, in line with our mission to make architecture accessible to all. Therefore you DON'T need to book except in a number of cases.

Each building selects its own method of opening, and for various reasons some decide to operate a booking system. Details can be found in each listing.

In the very few cases where bookings are required, use the contact details in these listings to book on or after 14 August ONLY – DO NOT try to book earlier than this as your request will not be accepted.

Terms of entry

Open House London is a free event inviting everyone to take part. Each building's opening, security arrangements and terms of entry are controlled by individual owners, and entry to each building is on terms and at times specified, on 19 & 20 September 2015. Participation in events is at your own risk. Information in this guide is provided by contributors. Open-City has taken all reasonable care to verify the information provided and cannot accept responsibility for any variation from the details published here. Please do respect building owners and their privacy, and be mindful when taking photos.

Important: see disclaimer see p 78

BALLOTS

Ballots are operated for the following buildings and events ONLY:

- 10 Downing Street (p70)
- Arriva archibus mystery tour (p15)
- The Coca-Cola London Eye (p50)

The ballots will close on 5 September.

Go to openhouselondon.org.uk/ballots to enter.

PLEASE NOTE ONLY successful applicants will be notified.

What will I find on the weekend?

Thousands of Open House volunteer expert guides and stewards will be showing you around and answering your questions over the weekend. Both professionals and amateur enthusiasts give their time and knowledge. In recognition of their support, their volunteer badge gives them priority access to buildings (apart from those that are pre-booking only). Email volunteers@open-city.org.uk if you want to find out how to become a future Open House volunteer.
